

Nuhad Yazbik Dumit

Dr. Nuhad Yazbik Dumit is a tenured professor of nursing and associate dean at the Hariri School of Nursing (HSON), American University of Beirut. She has more than 35 years of teaching experience at the undergraduate, masters, and PhD levels.

She has several funded research projects and related publications in international scientific conferences focusing on nursing workforce issues that aim at creating evidence for improving the profession and its services nation-wide. Recently, her research focus is on refugee and displaced people health needs.

She served as a consultant locally and regionally to higher education projects and professional practice developments including training, curriculum design, and program evaluations.

She is the founding director of the Scholar Activists for Impact and Learning (SAIL) for change, which is a network of scholar activists partnering with international and national organizations, experts, diaspora, students, and community volunteers, to “rebuild together our communities in a safe eco and social environment”, focused on sustainable solutions driven by local needs.

She served as President of the Order of Nurses in Lebanon, June 2015- June 2018 and led the development of several regulation and legislation proposals in addition to winning the ICN Innovation Award in 2017.

Professor Dumit is a recipient of several honors and awards at the university, national and international levels.